

BTSA Induction Through Inquiry

Are you interested in moving your teaching to the next level while earning your clear credential?

The Induction Program (BTSA) in the Reach Teaching Academy will help you develop an inquiry-based mindset while improving your instructional skills.

Our approach:

Reach believes that an inquiry-based approach to teaching is vitally important to high quality teaching. Through regular work with a coach, teachers in the Induction program design individual cycles of inquiry based on their personal learning needs. During the spring semester of each year, teachers may elect to focus exclusively lesson delivery, thus supporting habits of thinking and instructional skills. Coaches are trained to support each teacher in reaching his/her professional goals.

Goals of the program:

Candidates who complete the Reach Induction program earn a California Clear Teaching Credential while developing into skilled classroom leaders, with a mindset toward inquiry in education.

Who is eligible:

Teachers who have a California Preliminary teaching credential.

Requirements:

Teachers must have at least one class of students in their credential area.

Credentials earned:

California Clear Teaching Credential

Tuition (currently subsidized by grants):

- $1,800 per year (schools are highly encouraged to cover the cost for participants)

"My BTSA Induction Coach is supportive, intelligent, and genuinely involved in my work and ideas. She has been the driving force in motivating me to pursue great yet reasonable changes in my teaching practice. She pushes me in a constructive way for me to grow as a teacher. I am learning how to analyze student work and how to reach all different students through guided instruction, varied independent activities and homework. Plus, this work complements my work as a PLC member at my school. All the projects are aligned with the professional development that I am already doing."
