

"Great teaching is at the heart of every great school"

Are you interested in becoming an administrator with strong instructional leadership skills? Whether you are interested in becoming a school leader, a teacher leader, or a central office leader, the Reach Instructional Leadership Academy will hone your instructional leadership skills.

OUR APPROACH

Reach will develop your inquiry-based leadership skills by focusing on instructional problems of practice that lead to equitable outcomes for students. Our courses will ask you to read and discuss research, and to apply the learning to your current context. The focus on job-embedded coursework, supported by monthly coaching, is a signature of our approach. In order to maximize job-embedded application and active engagement in class, we use online tools both for discussion and for uploading video of your practice.

PROGRAM GOALS

Candidates who complete the Reach Instructional Leadership Academy will be skilled instructional coaches, supervisors, and facilitators of professional learning, with a highly developed inquiry orientation to instructional problems of practice.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Teachers, coaches, or current administrators with a clear California teaching credential and 5 years of teaching experience.
